

Shining a light

Bestselling author and healer Dr Eric Pearl talks to Patsy Bennett about his pioneering vision for Reconnective Healing.

Dr Eric Pearl walked away from a successful chiropractic practice in Los Angeles when he and others started witnessing miraculous healings. Since then, he has committed himself to sharing his experiences through lectures and seminars about 'The Reconnection'.

Please explain the evolution of your ability to heal?

When I began doing healings, I didn't know what was happening. People started getting up from wheelchairs, vision and hearing returning; children with cerebral palsy or epilepsy were able to walk, run, play ... get off their medication. I observed these healings without judgment. I held my hands near people, without touching them.

It seemed this was encompassing something really huge. Healers, scientists and researchers started coming to me. As we spoke we began to recognise that what science now refers to as Reconnective Healing, was something no one seemed to know about in the healing world. Something was very, very different about it from energy healing. Astonishingly, the healings tended to be instantaneous and lifelong. Patients' doctors would call me and ask what I'd done; I'd say, "I didn't do anything" and "Don't tell anyone!" The researchers started seeing levels of energy and aspects of light they hadn't seen before.

You say you impart light and information in your healings. How?

For the first time as humanity evolves, and as healing practitioners, we're accessing light and information when we let go of healing 'technique': two new levels of light and information are permeating into our existence. The biochemical model of healing is pretty much dead; it's obsolete. Our bodies heal through vibration, resonance, informational exchange, entrainment, and through light. The biochemical model can't explain what the light model explains.

Dr Fritz-Albert Popp and others have demonstrated in laboratories that DNA in our cells emit specific levels of light and when our health is diminishing, that light is measurably dimming. What's interesting about that is that six studies so far, done specifically with Reconnective Healing, have shown that Reconnective Healing heals and restructures damaged DNA, not just raising the level of light that we emit, but making it more what science calls 'coherent', in other words 'harmonic'. When the body returns to this higher vibration of light, we are really returning to a vibration of truth and our essence and to what we really are.

How do you see yourself going forward?

My purpose is to turn on the light in as many people as possible, to access this and to bring about healings, whether it's on a personal level, or within their families; or for Reconnective Healing practitioners, to spread it to their cities, to the planet. For me, this is a gift and a right of human nature by our existence. Reconnective Healing is about a waking up of ourselves and of others.

You say healing is a 'reconnection' - what and who are you reconnecting?

You are actually reconnecting with your original true and fuller self. And we are learning how to embody that consciousness and awareness and love essence more and more here in the physical plane.

You say a gypsy 'connected you to the stars'. If we run with this fairy tale analogy, what is the moral of your story?

It is that we are given tremendous opportunities, the extent of which we can't possibly fathom. And, as phenomenal as they are, they come to us in neutral presentation; so, at each juncture we are given the option to make a choice to view the unknown through fear and back away, or to view it through awe and wonder and therefore step into its splendour.

Information has been channelled for you. Where has it come from?

As best I understand it, it's from an intelligence somewhere on some plane of existence that found it important enough to reach through the illusion of time and space and to turn more than 50 of my patients into living, breathing 'broadcast systems'. I call the overall voice 'Solomon'. We recently produced the transcripts of this information into the book Solomon Speaks on Reconnecting Your Life (Hay House, www.hayhouse.com.au).

What is Reconnective Healing?

Reconnective Healing is about a waking up of ourselves and of others. We've been approaching energy healing from the point of view of techniques, and this has been at the expense of the healing itself.

Energy healing techniques are beautiful training wheels; they enable us to find our sense of balance. But once we've learned one level, we tend to add another - one set of training wheels after another. We need to ask instead, Is our goal to master techniques, or is our purpose to master healing itself? We can connect to Reconnection Healing as there is no technique. We master the healing without needing to stop at the healing technique levels. That's the first part of the gift. We have been learning through teachers, and not masters. The master waits patiently for us to realise that the gift of the techniques only comes when we transcend them.

With Reconnective Healing all you're really doing is feeling, noticing, observing and playing with the energy; you're not giving it any thought. Not trying to 'bring in the light', or direct it; not trying to diagnose, not trying to treat. In fact, the less you know about someone when they come to see you, the better off they are.

When the body returns to this higher vibration of light, it is really returning to a vibration of truth and the essence of what we really are.
